education is a discipline that is concerned with methods of teaching and learning in schools or school like environments as opposed to various nonformal and informal means of socialization e.g. rural development projects and education through parent-child relationships. Education is a treatise by John Milton published in 1644 first appearing anonymously as a single eight-page quarto sheet. Ainsworth et al. presented it as a letter written in response to a request from the Puritan educational reformer Samuel Hartlib. It represents Milton's most comprehensive statement on educational reform.

Learning is the process of acquiring new skills and understanding. Education is an organized system of learning. Training is a type of education that is focused on learning specific skills. A school is a community of learners—a group that comes together to learn with and from each other. Education is the transmission of knowledge, skills, and character traits. There are many types of education: formal education happens in a complex institutional framework like public schools. Nonformal education is also structured but takes place outside the formal schooling system.

Press releases: Statement from U.S. Secretary of Education Miguel Cardona on the recent Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System Collection: Biden Harris Administration Announces $93 Million in Grants to Support Research and Development at HBCUs, TCCUs, and MSIs and Postsecondary Completion for Underserved Students. Jun 2, 2008. Philosophy of education is the branch of applied or practical philosophy concerned with the nature and aims of education and the philosophical problems arising from educational theory and practice. Because that practice is ubiquitous in and across human societies, its social and individual manifestations

Mr. Hartlib, I am long since persuaded that to say or do ought worth memory and imitation no purpose or respect should sooner move us than simply the love of God and of mankind. Nevertheless, to write now the reforming of education though it be one of the greatest and noblest designs that can be thought on and for the want whereof this nation perishes I, the philosophy of education is the branch of applied philosophy that investigates the nature of education as well as its aims and problems. It also examines the concepts and presuppositions of education theories. The action or process of educating or of being educated, also a stage of such a process, is the knowledge and development resulting from the process of being the mission of the Harvard Graduate School of Education is to prepare education leaders and innovators who will change the world by expanding opportunities and outcomes for learners everywhere. We are an institution committed to making the broadest impact possible putting powerful ideas and evidence-based research into practice. May 12, 2014.
