Transesophageal echocardiography allows a very precise evaluation of the overall cardiac performance, preload, afterload, and contractility, as well as the regional ventricular function. Systolic wall motion abnormality, the assessment of important parameters of cardiac function, e.g., cardiac output, can be performed independently by two-dimensional echocardiography and doppler sampling of the aortic valve. The integration of various hemodynamic parameters in combination with echocardiographic data allows the calculation of the Laplace relation and systolic contractile indices. Experimental studies have shown the potential use of intravenous contrast echocardiography in assessing myocardial perfusion. The book is primarily intended for young anesthesiologists and residents in ICUs who are learning the technique of transesophageal echocardiography but also for cardiologists, internists, and radiologists who assess cardiac patients. This groundbreaking volume showcases the exciting work emerging from the ethnography of media, a burgeoning new area in anthropology that expands both social theory and ethnographic fieldwork to examine the way media film, television, and video are used in societies around the globe, often in places that have been off the map of conventional media studies. The contributors, key figures in this new field, cover topics ranging from indigenous media projects around the world to the unexpected effects of state control of media to the local impact of film and television as they travel transnationally. Their essays, mostly new work produced for this volume, bring provocative new theoretical perspectives grounded in cross-cultural ethnographic realities to the study of media. Like anything that is used in the home, a VCR requires minimal service to keep functioning well. A technical or engineering degree is not required to begin maintaining VCRs on a regular basis with a few tools such as tweezers, cleaning fluid, a power screwdriver, and cotton swabs. The in-home VCR mechanical repair cleaning guide shows readers the many tricks and secrets of VCR maintenance. Television Digest, with Consumer Electronics 1989, from a Hackney council estate to the House of Lords: this is the extraordinary story of one of our greatest entrepreneurs, Alan Sugar, who was born in 1947 and brought up on a council estate in Clapton in Hackney. As a kid, he watched his dad struggle to support the family, never knowing from one week to the next if he'd have a job. It had a huge impact on him, fuelling a drive to succeed that was to earn him a sizeable personal fortune. Now he describes his amazing journey from schoolboy enterprises like making and selling his own ginger beer to setting up his own company at nineteen, from Amstrad's groundbreaking ventures in hi-fi and computers which made him the darling of the stock exchange to the dark days when he nearly lost it all from his pioneering deal with Rupert Murdoch to his boardroom battles at Tottenham Hotspur FC. In this compelling autobiography, he takes us into the world of the apprentice and describes his appointment as advisor to the government and elevation to the peerage. Like the man himself, what you see is what you get: a forthright, funny, and sometimes controversial autobiography.
