craft how is it different from fine art or design in a theory of craft howard risatti examines these issues by comparing handmade ceramics glass metalwork weaving and furniture to painting sculpture photography and machine made design from bauhaus to the memphis group he describes craft s unique qualities as functionality combined with an ability to express human values that transcend temporal spatial and social boundaries modern design today has taken over from craft the making of functional objects of daily use by employing machines to do work once done by hand understanding the aesthetic and social implications of this transformation forces us to see craft as well as design and fine art in a new perspective risatti argues without a way of understanding and valuing craft on its own terms the field languishes aesthetically being judged by fine art criteria that automatically deny art status to craft objects craft must articulate a role for itself in contemporary society says risatti otherwise it will be absorbed by fine art or design and its singular approach to understanding the world will be lost a theory of craft is a signal contribution to establishing a craft theory that recognizes defines and celebrates the unique blend of function and human aesthetic values embodied in the craft object unplug and get creative with more than 150 craft and art activities for kids kids create features more than 150 engaging and thought provoking art projects and crafts for kids ages three to nine arranged by craft medium and ranging from beginner to advanced these projects including seasonal options are great for homeschooling school projects and weekends illustrations and step by step instructions demonstrate each activity and what it should look like along the way activities include shadow silhouettes sponge art a windsock recycling craft a globe making activity and many more including holiday themed decorations also included is an informative section for parents on the stages of a child's artistic development this is a perfect book for creative families who want to make something great together without light there is no photograph as almost every photographer knows the word photograph has its roots in two greek words that together mean drawing with light but what is less commonly acknowledged and understood is the role that shadow plays in creating striking expressive imagery especially in portraiture it is through deft nuanced use of both light and shadow that you can move beyond shooting simply ordinary competent headshots into the realm of creating dramatic portraiture that can so powerfully convey a subject's inner essence communicate a personal narrative and express your photographic vision p p in i the dramatic portrait the art of crafting light and shadow i chris knight addresses portraiture with a unique approach to both light and shadow that allows you to improve and elevate your own portraiture he begins with the history of portraiture from the early work of egyptians and greeks to the sublime treatment of light and subject by artists such as caravaggio, rembrandt, and vermeer. Chris then dives into a deep hands-on exploration of light shadow and portraiture, offering numerous lessons and takeaways. He covers the qualities of light—hard, soft, and the spectrum in between. The relationships between light, subject, and background, and how to control them. Lighting patterns such as paramount and rembrandt loop and split. Lighting ratios and how they affect contrast in your image. Equipment from big and small modifiers to grids, snoots, barn doors, flags, and gels. Multiple setups for portrait shoots, including those that utilize one, two, and three lights. How color contributes to drama and mood, eliciting an emotional response from the viewer. How to approach styling your portrait from wardrobe to background. The post-processing workflow including developing the raw file, maximizing contrast, color grading, retouching, and dodging and burning for heightened drama and effect.

How all of these elements culminate to help you define your personal style and create your own narrative. Examines what great thinkers of the past have had to say about the meaning of life and offers ways to shape your life into something beautiful and unique. The art and craft of wood shows you how to mill, stack, dry, and flatten a log into usable lumber and build a variety of household furnishings. Trees are all around us; they provide shade, beautify our neighborhoods, filter our water, and clean our air, but when they die, we often don't know what to do with them. Now you can learn the skills to reclaim those trees as lumber, perfect for the woodworking hobbyist. The art and craft of wood introduces readers to the basics of wood craft. The art and craft of wood will inspire you to make something of your own through simple step-by-step photos. As a reader, you will learn valuable skills, including where to find wood that you can reclaim for your own use. How to mill, stack, dry, and flatten your log into usable lumber. Create a variety of useful household furnishings in 7 step-by-step projects ranging in difficulty from novice to more complicated. What to do with leftover material such as making firestarters and animal bedding. Authors Silas Kyler and David Hildreth are also the filmmakers behind the documentary Felled, a film about giving new life to urban trees. They have lived the process of refining wood, the art and craft of wood. It is their guide to you artists, critics, curators, and scholars. Develop theories of craft in relation to art chronicle how fine art institutions understand and appreciate the art and craft of wood.

creative essence but reveals how we can craft our lives into a work of art. There are no shortcuts to quality and McManus celebrates the spiritual process that can help us discover our true selves. McManus demonstrates that we all carry within us the essence of an artist. We all need to create to be a part of a process that brings to the world something beautiful, good, and true in order to allow our souls to come to life. It's not only the quality of the ingredients we use to build our lives that matter, but the care we bring to the process itself. Just like baking artisan bread, it's a process that's crafted over time, and God has something to say about how we craft our lives. With poignant inspirational stories and insights from art, life, history, and scripture interspersed throughout, McManus walks readers through the process of crafting a life of beauty and wonder. 1980s to the present the book offers a nuanced portrayal of the Sa Dan Toraja, a predominantly Christian minority group in the world’s most populous Muslim country. Celebrated in anthropological and tourism literatures for their spectacular traditional houses, sculpted effigies of the dead, and pageantry-filled funeral rituals, the Toraja have entered an era of accelerated engagement with the global economy marked by ongoing struggles over identity, religion, and social relations. In her engaging account, Kathleen Adams chronicles how various Toraja individuals and groups have drawn upon artistically embellished traditional objects as well as monumental displays at museums, UNESCO ideas about world heritage and the world-wide to shore up or realign aspects of a cultural heritage perceived to be under threat. She also considers how outsiders—be they tourists, art collectors, members of rival ethnic groups, or government officials—have appropriated and reframed Toraja art objects for their own purposes. Her account illustrates how art can serve as a catalyst in identity politics, especially in the context of tourism and social upheaval. Ultimately, this insightful work prompts readers to rethink persistent and pernicious popular assumptions that tourism invariably brings a loss of agency to local communities or that tourist art is a compromised form of expression. Art as politics promises to be a favorite with students and scholars of anthropology, sociology, cultural studies, ethnic relations, art, and Asian studies.

This book presents diverse processes of crafting that bring humans and the environment closer to one another and by doing so addresses personal and educational developments towards ecological awareness. It discusses the human material relationship, introduces posthuman theoretical entry points, and reflects on the implementation of such theoretical perspectives in education. The practical examples of crafting with the environment, the material practices, and reflections posed in the book provide insights into possible ways of levelling out human and material hierarchies. The chapters of this book give examples of artists and craftspeople’s processes of thinking through materials and with materials but also their reflections on how more than humans, animals, and plants craft from available materials and how the environment and landscapes re-craft themselves through tedious processes of transformation. These case examples are founded on the authors' own experiences with phenomena they are trying to understand and critically explore. This book is of interest to professional creative practitioners, art and craft educators, art teacher educators, or researchers in the field of creative practices—it has power to inspire rethinking of present educational practices to ignite critical reflections about materials and more than humans and hopefully motivate transformations toward more ecologically sustainable ways of life. Chapters crafting in dialogue with the material environment and soil laboratory crafting experiments.
